THIS WEEK'S BLURB

Hi Church.

Have you ever been lost? Recently Di and I were invited to someone's place for dinner and began the drive without checking their streets name because we had been there before and were confident that we could remember the route without recourse to the roadmap we had in the car. After we failed to recognize any of the houses we had driven past, peering through the darkness on our repeated and increasingly confused excursions up and down the street we thought they lived on, we admitted defeat. An urgent and apologetic phone call, the correct street name to go with our correct street number together with the wonders of GPS on iPhone and we were on our way, albeit a little late for dinner. The one crucial detail we hadn't factored in was that our hosts had moved house about 10 years ago! If you don't know where you are going, any path will take you there!

Having a clear picture of our destination is absolutely essential for the successful execution of any travel plan, yet we often find that some way through the journey we lose awareness of what the journey was all about. We become preoccupied with carefully placing one foot in front of the other but at the same time oblivious to where those steps are taking us. Scripture reveals to us the big picture, God's ultimate intention, the Holy Spirit connects us to the wisdom of the ages. If we keep these perspectives in mind as we travel, we can be supremely confident of reaching our destination.

Best blessings,
Hamish and Di.
